By far the hardest of 5 marathons I've ever done! The weather and shoe choice, played its toll on me, not reaching my goal. Humbling experience however. Congrats to everyone who finished and hope all were able to cross the finish line, under their own faculties. I noticed many stumbling and wavering at the finish line or thereafter. Barely made it back to our condo, I was so cold and spent.

Brutal weather, worse for those in the later starts.

But given all (including time lost with a woman who fell abruptly in front on me, whom I had to jump over to not trip on...and when I looked back, was shocked to see no one stopped to help, I returned to get her on her feet)...

No complaints though. Doing Boston Marathon again, 27 years later -- done.

Congrats to all who experienced the incredible support, and wall of cheering while crossing towards Boylston and the finish.

Met a 74 year old on the bus, doing his 19th---and whose grandfather placed 6th in 1902. Only in Boston.

Best,
Eric
